Summary

Penguin Chick

A mother and father emperor penguin have only one baby a year. In Antarctica, there is nothing to build a nest with, so the father must keep the egg warm. The mother goes in search of food. The baby hatches shortly before the mother returns. She feeds the baby and cares for him while the father goes to eat and bring back food. The mother and father continue to take turns caring for and feeding the chick until the baby penguin is old enough to go hunt for food on its own.

Compare and Contrast

- Compare by telling how two or more things are alike.
- Contrast by telling how two or more things are different.

Directions: Read the passage. Then answer the questions below.

Most people enjoy seeing goldfinches in summer. The cheerful little birds are bright yellow with dark markings on their wings and tail. In winter, these birds seem to disappear. Some goldfinches do fly south, but many more stay right in the same neighborhood all year long. They seem to disappear because their yellow feathers turn brown to blend with the drab winter surroundings. The brown feathers help keep them from being an easy target for hungry enemies. In winter, you might mistake them for sparrows, unless you see their dark markings, which stay the same. The next time you see a group of drab-looking little birds perched in a brown, leafless tree, take a closer look. They just might be goldfinches hiding out for the winter.

1. Compare and contrast goldfinches in summer with goldfinches in winter.
   - In summer, goldfinches have bright yellow feathers. In winter their feathers turn brown. The dark markings stay the same all year round.

2. How are goldfinches like sparrows during winter?
   - They both look small, drab, and brown.

3. How can you tell the difference between goldfinches and sparrows in winter?
   - Goldfinches have dark markings on their tails and wings, but sparrows do not.

4. Do you think goldfinches that fly south change color? Why or why not?
   - Possible response: Probably not. They don’t need to change color to blend in with drab winter surroundings.

Home Activity: Your child compared and contrasted the summer and winter appearance of a goldfinch. With your child, talk about other birds and animals and compare and contrast their appearance and behavior in different seasons.
